INTRODUCTION

With its impressive backdrop of luxury apartments, restaurants, shops and bars, Queensway Quay Marina nestles in the heart of the town giving easy access to all of the attractions Gibraltar has to offer.

Gibraltar has long been known as a convenient stop over for yachts on route to and from the Mediterranean, but we can now also offer a top rating for long term berthing.

The Marina is one of the few places where it is perfectly safe to leave your yacht for long periods without any worries, unlike harbours along the south coast of Spain which are often the hub of night life during high season, yet deserted in winter, Gibraltar with its 30,000 population is a living town throughout the year. English is the common language and with its tax free status, is ideal for shopping and ordering those spare parts and accessories V.A.T. free.

THE MARINA OFFICE

A new solid breakwater was constructed in 2005 known as The Island.

The development is also the site for 19 luxury houses with 20m berths attached. The island gives total protection for all yachts, minimising any swell from the Marina.

The entrance to the Marina is now sited at the North West corner of the marina.

Additional toilet and shower facility available for out of office hours.

THE MARINA STAFF

Every time you visit the Marina you will meet some of our friendly team. Our aim is to welcome you and give you the very best service. Our staff are friendly and knowledgeable and everyone works as a team to ensure your complete satisfaction.

QUEENSWAY QUAY HISTORY

Ragged Staff Wharf, as the quayside at Queensway Quay Marina is called, is probably the oldest wharf in Gibraltar.

Of Spanish origin, Ragged Staff Wharf was developed by the British in 1736 under the supervision of First Lord of the Admiralty Sir Charles Wager, with the purpose of providing "better victualling of men-at-war".

Ragged Staff Wharf also became the traditional landing place for newly-arriving Governors of Gibraltar at the steps known as Governors' Landing - which are still in use as part of the marina.
